ANTI-VIVISECTION FORCES PUSH AMENDMENT FIGHT

American anti-vivisection forces have announced the reinforcing of their cause, aimed at adoption of laws abolishing the practice. Dr. Walter R. Hadwen, head of the British Union for the Abolition of Vivisection, has been engaged and is making a speaking tour of the country, opposing vivisection.

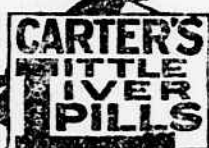

Dr. Hadwen opened a tour of the western states last month in Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and other cities, going then to California, where he will add the campaign for the passage of an anti-vivisection amendment to the state constitution. Sentiment is strong in California for such a measure, according to officials of anti-vivisection societies, despite the defeat of a similar bill two years ago. After a month's work in California, Dr. Hadwen will visit eastern cities.

Advocates of the practice who believe in its value to the human race and to the medical sciences, did not discuss the question publicly with him, it was said, when he visited this country several years ago. He is making the present visit in answer to those proponents of vivisection who challenged his right to speak for opponents.

The doctor was formerly a believer in vivisection, it was said, as well as vaccination and inoculation. Dr. Hadwen claims that 75 per cent of English children are unvaccinated and attributes to that fact the lowest smallpox rate in the entire history of that country.

CORONADO MINES HEARING DENIED

Similar Orders in Southern Pacific and Emergency Fleet Cases.

HIGHEST COURT RULINGS

U. S. Supreme Tribunal Refuses to Reopen Number of Controversies, Advances Others.

The Supreme Court of the United States cleared its docket yesterday of all motions for rehearings, which had accumulated during the summer recess, denying rehearings in such important cases as the Southern Pacific, the Coronado coal, the Emergency Fleet Corporation, base ball and Laramie river irrigation project cases.

The court advanced for hearing the Pennsylvania anthracite and the Minnesota iron tax cases, and issued orders in connection with a number of other cases.

Affects Labor Unions.

The Coronado case resulted in the Supreme Court declaring that labor unions were suable, and were liable to prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust laws. In applying the evidence in the case, however, the Supreme Court reversed the lower federal courts, and held that the United Mine Workers of America, District No. 21, the labor leaders and others involved in the strike which resulted in the destruction of property, were not liable for treble damages under the Sherman law, because not accused by an intent to restrain or monopolize interstate commerce. The court's decision was a complete victory to have that feature of the decision reviewed, contending that the prime object of the strike was to prevent the interstate shipment of coal.

Petitions For and Against Rulings.

After the decision of the court last June ordering the Southern Pacific Company to divorce itself from ownership or control over the Central Pacific railroad, a number of petitions were presented to Congress from commercial and other organizations discussing the probable effect of the decision. Some urged and others opposed its enforcement, but the Supreme Court in refusing to reopen the case brought the protracted litigation to its last stages, and a mandate will now issue under which the United States district court for Utah will proceed to give effect to the decision.

The government was particularly urgent for a rehearing in the Emergency Fleet Corporation cases, in which the court held that the corporation as a government agency was suable as any other corporate entity. The refusal of the court to reopen the cases will result, the government asserted, in a flood of suits being instituted against the corporation.

The base ball case, brought by the defunct Baltimore Federal League Club against organized base ball, resulted in the court deciding that professional base ball as played by teams under the national agreement is not interstate commerce, and in dismissing the suit for treble damages brought under the Sherman anti-trust law.

ASKS ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

Wife Says Bureau Employee's Monthly Income Is $612.

Mrs. May Dorey yesterday filed suit for an absolute divorce from her husband, Arthur G. Dorey. The wife filed a petition for a limited divorce last Wednesday, but withdrew it the next day. In the new petition she charges misconduct and names a correspondent. They were married July 8, 1912, and separated in June, 1921. There are no children.

In asking the court to award her suitable alimony, Mrs. Dorey says her husband is employed in the bureau of engraving and printing at a salary of $212 a month, conducts a luncheon at the navy yard which nets him $300 a month, and has an interest in a clear business from which he receives $100 a month. She is represented by Attorney Michael C. O'Brien.

90 DAYS FOR DEVIL DOG.

John J. Evans, a member of the U. S. M. C., and a member of the Devil Dogs, A. E. F., and stationed in the barracks at Quantico, Va., was sentenced yesterday by Judge Hardison, in United States branch of Police Court, to serve ninety days in the workhouse for assaulting Policeman Paul R. Toland. Police officers said that Evans kept up the reputation of the devil dogs and put up a hard fight.

WARNS HOME BUILDERS.

Federal Housing Chief Gives Four Rules to Prospectors.

A word of advice and warning to prospective home builders was given by John M. Gries, chief of the building and housing division of the Department of Commerce, in an interview Sunday in regard to "better homes week," which begins all over the country today.

Mr. Gries laid down four maxims that should be kept in mind when planning the building of a house: "Know exactly what you want before buying, be sure the title is clear, there are no easements, and be ready to pay all taxes. Be sure you know how you are going to pay for your home, that a loan, if necessary, is made properly and with a reputable house, and lastly that you build no more pretentious a home than you can afford."

NAVAL INSPECTORS MOVED.

The "pick-up" lunch loses its reason for existence

Of course "It's hardly worth while cooking two real meals a day" if one must spend hours over the kitchen stove for both of them.

But with Hotpoint Servants on the lunch table, a hearty luncheon for the family is a matter of little effort.

The pictures below show you what is going on today at noon-time in thousands of homes where "pick-up" lunches were formerly the rule.

Chops? Eggs? Potatoes? Why, of course, when one has a Hotpoint Radiant Grill. It boils, broils, fries and toasts—any two operations at the same time.

Creamed dishes—nourishing and good—are quickly and easily prepared at table with the Hotpoint Chafin Dish. A good way, too, to "warm things over."

Water for tea is brought to a boil quickly with a Hotpoint Teapot. Continuous heat—no jumping up to re-heat the water.

The Hotpoint Toaster makes crisp, delicious toast. You turn the toast without touching it.
